MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT BRENDAN J. DUGAN ’68

Every year, the holidays give us time to pause, reflect and share recent activities and accomplishments with family and loved ones.

It was a particularly good year for one member of our extended family: Kenneth Daly ’88. Ken returned to Brooklyn after a two-year stint in London to take on the job of President of National Grid, New York. Even with extra responsibilities, Ken is finding time to assume an even bigger role here at St. Francis. We are proud to welcome him as a new member of the College’s Board of Trustees (page 8).

This past September marked the 10th anniversary of the attacks on 9/11. The College observed the anniversary throughout the semester with special events, including a memorial mass, a series of lectures by professors, and personal reflections by alumni such as former FDNY Commissioner Thomas Von Essen ’72 who spoke at the College in November (page 10).

Academically, St. Francis began two exciting new programs in the fall. One is the American Studies program, a new concentration aimed at giving students a workplace advantage by teaching them how to understand the interactions within our diverse culture (page 7). The second program is in cooperation with the Brooklyn Historical Society. As part of the coursework, five professors and their students visit BHS to learn how to work with primary sources; students pour over 100-year-old photographs and study archived materials such as ticket stubs, posters, advertisements and magazines (page 6).

Also in this issue, you’ll find the 2010-2011 Donor Report (page 22). Every name on this list is a sign of the support, and commitment our alumni and friends have to the mission of St. Francis College. You have our gratitude for your generosity and thanks from our students. The responsibility for coordinating those donations is an enormous task, handled exceptionally by our Office of Development. We have several new faces in that department and want you to meet the group that is working on behalf of the College and our students (page 18).

Wishing you a very Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year.

Sincerely,

Brendan J. Dugan ’68

Rockaway Scholars Get Head Start on College

Students at Scholars’ Academy in Rockaway Park won’t let not having a high school diploma keep them from taking college courses. A partnership with St. Francis College in Brooklyn Heights now brings college course work right to their classrooms.

The collaboration is in its third year and gives Scholars’ Academy juniors and seniors the opportunity to take St. Francis science and liberal arts courses while they complete high school. The courses are offered at a reduced rate and also include access to a number of St. Francis’ library and research resources through the St. Francis College on-line portal.

“Scholars’ Academy has a highly motivated student body,” said Dean of Academic Program Development Allen Burdowski, who founded the partnership with Scholars’ Academy Principal Brian O’Connell. “By bringing the College right to them, students see an immediate benefit in earning college credits and by saving money while doing it. All students in this program are taking valuable steps towards improving their chances of going to college and ultimately obtaining a college degree.”

In addition to taking college level classes, students are offered workshops on curriculum and sophomores are taken on a trip to St. Francis. Admissions and financial services staff of the College also provide Scholars’ students with information regarding ways to pay for college through grants and other forms of financial aid.

“This program encompasses more than offering classes and moving on,” said Executive Vice President June McGrisken. “We are deeply invested in these students and want to do everything we can to prepare them for college and a brighter future.”

Diamond and Golden Jubilees for Brooklyn Brothers

It was a joyous day as three Franciscan Brothers and alumni of St. Francis College celebrated their Diamond and Golden Jubilees at The Immaculate Conception Center in Douglaston, Queens on October 1.

Brother Robert Schaefer, O.S.F. ‘61, who has been with St. Francis since 1970, celebrated his 60th anniversary, his Diamond Jubilee. Brother Robert served as the College’s Registrar for 28 years before becoming a Mathematics professor in 1998. He is still teaching today.

Also celebrating his Diamond Jubilee was Brother Alan Zodda, O.S.F. ‘63, who has worked at Our Lady of Good Counsel, St. Leonard’s Academy and Bishop Ford High School. He has spent more than 40 years at St. Francis Prep, where he still works. Celebrating his Golden Jubilee (50 years) was Brother Warren (James Joseph) Prentiss, O.S.F. ‘67, who worked at several schools across Long Island before taking on his current position as Director of Attendance at St. Francis Prep.

sfc.edu Make the change!

Just like many of our classrooms on campus, the website address for St. Francis College has undergone a major renovation.

www.stfranciscollege.edu is now www.sfc.edu

Starting in 2012, all email addresses that currently end with @stfranciscollege will be changed to @sfc.edu. Update your bookmarks and contact lists now! Then starting in June all emails sent to the old address will be lost and www.stfranciscollege.edu will no longer function.
Hend Shnayen Awarded Honorary Degree

On August 5, Thomas J. Volpe, Chairman Emeritus, SFC Board of Trustees, and Adjunct Professor Dr. Yassin El-Ayouty gave an Honorary Doctorate of Letters to Hend Shnayen who helped Iraq draft parts of its new constitution regarding the rights of children and women.

The Ontario Provincial Government and Oakville Member of Provincial Parliament Kevin Flynn hosted the presentation near Toronto; Ms. Shnayen, a former Iraqi national, is now a Canadian citizen and lives in Ontario with her three children. She recently founded the International Institute for the Arabic Culture and Language that helps local governments integrate minorities into the community as well as develop community service across diverse cultures.

“It is a continuation of the work she did in Iraq, helping widows and street children who were victims of Saddam Hussein. She too suffered at the dictator’s hand: 18 members of Ms. Shnayen’s family were executed during his reign.

Guests heard an operatic rendition of “O Canada,” the Canadian national anthem, before Mr. Volpe and Dr. El-Ayouty praised Ms. Shnayen for her lifelong dedication to improving the quality of life for the Iraqi people and for improving the understanding of people from diverse cultures.

Ms. Shnayen told the audience, “By honoring me tonight, you are honoring all those like me, who when they see a chance for bettering humanity, they go for it.”

Richard Silverman '64 Presented with an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters

Unable to attend the Spring 2011 commencement, Richard Silverman ’64 was presented with an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa in September, by St. Francis College President Brendan J. Dugan ’68 and Vice President for Development Thomas F. Flood.

Mr. Silverman, a former member of the St. Francis Board of Trustees and lifelong supporter of the College, has had a successful career in the banking industry and is a major supporter of community organizations and educational institutions. He is currently Vice Chairman of US Trust.

MAJOR AND MINOR: Political Science and Philosophy
HOMETOWN: Queens Village
HIGH SCHOOL: Forest Hills High School

When Matthew Delfino applied for a NYC summer internship program, he knew it was the first rung of a ladder that would help him climb to a future career. He never dreamt, however, that in less than a year, he would be on stage at Gracie Mansion as Mayor Michael Bloomberg introduced him as the Keynote Speaker for the Ladder to Leaders program.

“I was chosen by the Mayor to represent a defining moment in which the youth were re-establishing expectations for our future generation. That moment alone with the Mayor boosted my confidence, and was a taste of what hard work can truly accomplish,” said Mr. Delfino during his August 8 presentation.

Last summer, Ladders to Leaders, run by the city Department of Youth & Community Development, placed 216 city students at private corporations across the five boroughs. Mr. Delfino was selected to represent the group based on his performance during workshops and at his internship with Gartner, Inc., an information technology research and advisory company.

A long jumper and sprinter on the SFC Men’s Track and Field team, Mr. Delfino knows that to be a winner, you can’t show up on race day without many hours of preparation. To attain his goal of attending a top-tier law school, Mr. Delfino is majoring in Political Science with an additional interest in Philosophy.

“I can genuinely say that I’ve learned something from all of my professors so far, and enjoyed all of their teaching methods. One professor in particular, Dr. Frank Sorrentino, has really opened my eyes to political science, and has transformed my style of thinking,” Mr. Delfino said.

His hard work is already paying dividends: His freshman year grade point average earned him the Mary and Frank J. (’62) Macchiarola Scholarship for his remaining time at the College.

CONSTITUTION DAY — SEPTEMBER 15

“James Madison is the central figure in this drama,” said St. Francis College Law Professor Frank Sorrentino, author of American Government: Power and Politics in America, in a lecture celebrating the 224th anniversary of the signing of the U.S. Constitution. Dr. Sorrentino discussed the impact of Madison’s accomplishments, including his role in creating and assuring the success of the Constitutional Convention as well as his intention to create the political gridlock that is so prevalent today. Sorrentino said that Madison wanted a slow moving form of government to safeguard the personal liberties of minorities in the population. He also explored the significance of the U.S. Constitution among other governing doctrines, noting its emphasis on democracy and the idea that the power of government comes from the people not from a monarch, king or divine figure.

9/11 TEN YEARS LATER — SEPTEMBER 19

Arab Spring dealt “a devastating blow to the ideology of Al-Qaeda,” said Fine Arts Professor Dr. Yassin El-Ayouty, editor of Perspectives on 9/11 (Praeger, 2004), in the second part of a two-part lecture marking the 10th anniversary of the World Trade Center and Pentagon attacks.

The first part of the lecture, delivered by Philosophy Professor Gerald Galgan, co-writer of the epilogue to Perspectives on 9/11, explored the idea of amoral moralism in relation to terrorism. Professor Galgan noted that a way to combat amoral moralism is to understand that “it takes a civilization to cultivate a citizen of a democratic republic.” Dr. El-Ayouty described the current series of uprisings and evolutions across the Arab world as the triumph of democracy over terrorism.

ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE LITERARY PRIZE — SEPTEMBER 17

A celebration of the written word at the opening night gala of the 2011 Brooklyn Book Festival as Jonathan Dee, author of The Privileges (Random House), was announced as the second winner of the $50,000 St. Francis College Literary Prize at the Brooklyn Book Festival 2011 Gala Mingle and Awards Ceremony held at The Green Building.

“So much of being a writer is about disappointment and discouragement. Tonight I feel the exact opposite. I feel nothing but encouraged,” said Dee after being awarded the prize.

YOUNG VOTERS AND THE 2012 ELECTION — OCTOBER 4

Divisive, partisan politics could be on the way out if Millennial voters spread their influence, say Morley Winograd and Michael Hais, authors of Millennial Momentum: How a New Generation is Remaking America. In a panel focusing on the upcoming 2012 presidential election, Winograd and Hais compared Millennials to older generations describing them as team-oriented, liberal, and more likely to support multilateralism. Also on the panel, Henry Olsen, Vice President of the American Enterprise Institute, provided statistics and questioned the short-term impact of Millennials on elections and if this generation will really power politics. Elaine Kamarck, lecturer in Public Policy at the Kennedy School of Government, rounded out the discussion, explaining that there is a common misconception that young voters and minorities are two separate groups that significantly influence election outcomes. Kamarck argues that these two groups are one and the same and therefore do not have a substantial impact at voting polls. The panel also discussed the impact of technology, interracial marriages and religion on the voting decisions of the Millennial Generation. St. Francis Scholar in Residence and Senior Fellow at the Manhattan Institute Fred Siegel moderated the discussion.

POET JOHN GUZLOWSKI — OCTOBER 11

Born after World War II in a refugee camp to Polish Catholic parents who were slave laborers under the Nazis, poet John Guzowski shared work from his book Lightning and Ashes, about their lives and other victims of the Holocaust at a reading and book signing hosted by the Department of English and organized by English Professor Gregory Tague.

WALT WHITMAN WRITERS SERIES: DINAW MENGESTU — OCTOBER 17

He was born in Ethiopia and immigrated to the United States when he was two, but Walt Whitman Writer Series speaker Dinaw Mengestu says despite obvious physical, ethnic and geographic differences, it is what all people have in common that makes literature such an effective way to communicate and educate.

“I don’t write because I want to give you the idea of the Ethiopian American experience or the immigrant experience, I write because I believe we all know what it is to be lonely. We all know what it is to want love in our lives. We all know that at some point in time we are forced to create a sense of home and identity,” said Mengestu during a reading of his latest novel, How to Read the Air. “These are struggles that are not particular to any ethnicity or identity. They are greater than those issues.”

Exploring Brooklyn’s Past

BY MEGHAN LEWIT

In the dark, wood-paneled library of the Brooklyn Historical Society, students in Eric Platt’s history class pulled on pristine white gloves and began to pore over delicate black and white photos laid out on long tables. Some of the photographs — dating back to around 1900 — are grainy family portraits taken on the Coney Island boardwalk and printed on iron sheets. Later photos, taken in the 1980s in the same location, show graffiti-scarred, dilapidated buildings.

“How does this reflect the time when it was taken?” Platt, an Assistant Professor of History, recently asked a group of students as he pointed to one of the more current photos. “Is Coney Island in better shape today?”

It was the first of several class trips to examine the Brooklyn Historical Society’s archives. Platt’s survey of American history focuses on the history of Coney Island and students work in groups to analyze film clips and images of the famous amusement park and neighborhood through the years. In many ways, the area’s history mirrors the urbanization of America: the effects of the Great Depression, the subsequent decline of cities in the 1950s and 60s, and Coney Island’s more recent renaissance he noted.

Platt said he hoped to grab students’ attention by choosing a topic that’s close to home. “It’s a good lens for American history through the 20th century,” he said. “The goal of the program is to make history come alive for the students. The Internet is a wonderful tool, but it’s really important for college students to use library resources.”

“It’s great to see how history changes through photography, and to compare and contrast. I hope every class has an opportunity to do this,” said Danielle Dinino ’13.

Throughout the semester, classes from St. Francis College have been regularly visiting the Brooklyn Historical Society to sort through the institution’s vast collection of “cultural ephemera”—the photos, posters, lithographs, old ferry tickets and myriad other items tracing Brooklyn’s 400-year history. Led by professors Platt, Athena Devlin, Alexandria Egler, Sara Haviland and Jennifer Wingate, students have used the resources housed in the landmark Brooklyn Heights building to study history, religion, English and fine arts.

The new interdisciplinary program is funded by a three-year grant the Brooklyn Historical Society received from the U.S. Department of Education Fund for the Improvement of Secondary Education. St. Francis College faculty collaborated with the Historical Society last summer to develop the curriculum, aimed at introducing first-year students to archival research. Classes are capped at 15 to ensure that all students get individual time in the archives.

“St. Francis College is connected to cultural resources and institutions around the city, and it’s really crucial for students to have access to these kinds of things,” said Athena Devlin, Associate Professor of English, director of the American Studies Program and co-director of the Women’s Center. “The Brooklyn Historical Society has been very generous with their time and resources.”

Ultimately, it’s about getting students into the archives and away from Googling, she said.

“Students get so much of their information filtered and rarely read primary sources,” she said. “With this program, they are learning to unlock their critical thinking skills; to make the materials have meaning, worth and value, rather than someone telling them why it is important.”

The Brooklyn Historical Society is simultaneously working with neighboring schools Long Island University, Brooklyn Campus and the New York City College of Technology on similar programs. Next summer, students from all three schools who have participated in the program will have the opportunity to participate in a month-long, paid internship at the historical society. Additionally, St. Francis College students are able to access the historical society’s archives on their own time for the duration of the grant, which covers five academic semesters.

Each of the classes will contribute to a website and blog documenting their work and experiences in the program, and the students’ final projects will be culled into a digital exhibit.

Despite the decidedly modern, digital aspect of the program, the project primarily aims to give the students hands-on experiences with the historical materials.

Undergraduate students get a lot out of actually handling the photographs, pamphlets and other items from the archives, said Robin Katz, Outreach and Public Services Archivist at the Brooklyn Historical Society.

“It’s the kind of stuff that people never intended to keep, but the students piece together a better understanding of history through these objects,” she said. “Primary sources can speak to a wide variety of disciplines, and can be used in innovative ways.”

Jennifer Wingate, Assistant Professor of Fine Arts, chose to focus her American Art Survey course on photography, pulling from the Brooklyn Historical Society’s collections from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Students in the class had the opportunity to handle early forms of photography, such as daguerreotypes—an image made in the camera on a silvered copper plate—and tintypes to study the evolution of the medium over time. As a final project, the students will create their own exhibit of juxtaposed images, showing how they contrast.

“This is what art history is, telling a story. The students are crafting or curating their own story,” Wingate said. “I’m hoping to give them a sense of exploration from going through these resources.”

Several of the faculty members involved in the project said they also hope to give the students a better understanding of their heritage and, in many cases, their hometown. It seems to be working: “Not many people know the history of where they live. It’s good to see the evidence in front of you instead of professor just telling you about [a subject],” said Leah Tribbett ’13.

“Primary sources can speak to a wide variety of disciplines, and can be used in innovative ways.”

American Studies Professor Devlin is meeting that challenge with the new American Studies Certificate Program, which began this fall.

As creator and director of the program, Dr. Devlin wants to give St. Francis students a better understanding of American culture. “In my introductory class, I want to bring students outside of the classroom and take a hard look at how we are affected by our incredibly diverse culture. New York City and its amazing patchwork of ethnicities is the backdrop for the course.”

To earn the American Studies certificate, students take six interdisciplinary courses, all created specifically for the program. The work crosses pluralistic courses, all created specifically for the program. The work crosses

Students in Professor Alexandria Egler’s religious studies class are working on producing their own religious family trees and oral histories. The goal, Egler said, is to demonstrate how information from 100 years ago can remain relevant in the 21st century. Egler encourages her students to venture out of the classroom, and also leads classes on tours of the neighborhood to visit churches, synagogues and a Buddhist Temple that are all within a small radius of St. Francis College.

“One of the great things about the project is that we’re in the heart of Brooklyn, and there are so many local and cultural institutions here,” Egler said. “Brooklyn is a borough of churches. Growing up and living in New York City many of the students here are exposed to a variety of religions. They ride cheek-to-jowl with such a diverse population every day and they don’t even realize it.”

In the modern world, it’s easy for students to lose sight of the importance of the past. “They have these moments while looking at the documents or listening to oral histories,” she said. “It opens them up to understanding the intellectual process. It makes it fun, and makes it real.”

over a variety of majors and fields of studies that might not otherwise seem connected such as Fine Arts and Business Management; all are geared towards giving student a better understanding of American culture and America’s part in a global society.

“We encourage freshmen and sophomores to take American Studies courses because they serve as a gateway to related majors at the College, like History, Sociology, Fine Arts and Communications, just to name a few,” said Fine Arts Professor Jennifer Wingate, Assistant Director of the program.

St. Francis College, with its rich history of more than 150 years and wide diversity of students, offers a strong example of how a multi-faceted American culture can enrich an entire community.

“Using our own students’ backgrounds as a starting point gives us a unique opportunity to better understand society,” added Professor Wingate. “That cultural knowledge is a valuable asset.”

“You can take your American Studies experience anywhere,” added Professor Devlin. “Having this on your resume will give you a leg up in everything from law and education to human resources and management.”
Walking into the Brooklyn offices of National Grid is a lot like attending an alumni reunion at St. Francis College. Both current students and graduates hold titles ranging from intern to analyst, executive assistant to vice-president, all the way up to the President of New York State Business.

That top spot is now held by Kenneth Daly ’88, an English major who points with gratitude to two Franciscan Brothers who put him on the path to where he is today. As a senior at Brooklyn Technical High School, Mr. Daly wasn’t sure about his next step.

“I got a letter in the mail, very late in the year, saying ‘Come to St. Francis College.’ And while I was there I met Brother George, and not only did I get into St. Francis, they offered me a full presidential scholarship. From that point forward, I never looked back.”

While the late Brother George Larkin, O.S.F. ’60, played a pivotal role in bringing Mr. Daly into St. Francis, another Brother, the late John Hoffschmidt, O.S.F., played a similar role in moving him out.

“Brother John called me one day and asked if I’d like to interview at Brooklyn Union Gas. I didn’t have a resume or an interview suit,” Mr. Daly recalls. “His office typed the resume for me; he didn’t lend me his suit thankfully. I figured that part out on my own. The next day I went for an interview… 20 some-odd years later here I am.”

Brooklyn Union, which became KeySpan and then National Grid, is the only employer Mr. Daly has known. “One thing that’s very, very important to me is loyalty,” he said.

That loyalty has paid dividends, not just for Daly who was named to his current position earlier this year after working as financial controller for two years in England, but for students at St. Francis College. Mr. Daly has been a generous contributor to the College including the creation of an endowed Ken Daly Scholarship.

But Mr. Daly believes that giving back means a lot more than simply writing a check.

“A goal of mine is to pay St. Francis back for the scholarship Brother George gave me. Part of that is with contributions, but what I enjoy most is working with the students”

Mr. Daly is also proud of the National Grid Internship and Scholarship program.
“The impact we’ve made is probably greater than anything else I’ve done. If I just walk the floor here, you will meet, no exaggeration, a dozen current St. Francis students working as interns. We started that program about 20 years ago and many of our workers have come through the ranks that way, including our Treasurer (Lorraine M. Lynch ’92, National Grid Vice President, U.S. Treasury).”

In addition to the internships, Daly estimates that National Grid has hired more than 100 St. Francis graduates.

But Daly was not content with his relationship with his alma mater. He wanted more involvement and has now become one of the newest members of the St. Francis Board of Trustees. “This is the ultimate step in supporting the College at the highest level; to help influence and support the institution. It’s part of the continuing 25-year payback,” said Mr. Daly.

Although one might think that fundraising would be Mr. Daly’s focus, based on his business contacts and experience, he has other goals. “Having taught for 18 years and having been a student for four years and having hired more than 100 graduates, I think I’m in a unique position to work with academics on shaping programs, on informing St. Francis’ curriculum to prepare students for the future.”

It’s not the first time Mr. Daly has played against stereotypes. “I always say to folks — how did an English major from Brooklyn wind up becoming the financial controller, working in England, of a very large, global company. It’s not the obvious path.”

Mr. Daly credits his undergraduate English degree with helping him with the necessary “soft skills” in becoming a leader. “My hard skill is finance. I’m a numbers person, a math person. I really like statistics and analytics and that’s helped me greatly in business. But the soft skills are even more important as you advance in a company. It’s communication skills, writing skills, listening skills, broader leadership skills. Some of us are better at one or the other but you really need the balance of the two.”

That balancing act is perhaps the most important reason Mr. Daly has risen up the ranks at National Grid. With wonderful parents and wife Laurie, (whom he calls the true hero of the family,) and four young children, Mr. Daly says flexibility is key.

“Family always comes first but work is a close second especially with these types of leadership roles. There are some days I’d rather be with my family but I need to be at work and there are some days where I should be focusing even more on work but I need to be with my family. You have to really prioritize.”

Mr. Daly admits that the commitment can be taxing but he points out that the hard work you put in pays dividends. “You really need to look at it as a career not a job. You need to look at it as an investment in your future.”

The commitment works both ways. Daly is thankful for the Company’s Tuition Aid program, which enabled him to receive an MBA in Finance from St. John’s, an MS in Human Resources from NYU-PolyTech, and achieve the distinguished Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation.

He says you also have to enjoy what you’re doing. “I always tell folks, if you’re not having fun, change something. Change yourself. Change the environment. Change the job if you have to. You have to really enjoy what you’re doing because you do it so often.”
The tragic events of 9/11 affected St. Francis College in a number of ways: We lost alumni, friends, and family even as we watched several graduates play leadership roles in the response and recovery operations.

Thirteen St. Francis students or graduates died at Ground Zero. They were either at work that day or first responders trying to help victims.

What’s notable is that a significant part of the leadership that headed the recovery was made up of St. Francis alumni. Thomas Von Essen ’72, now International Spokesperson for Honeywell Corporation’s Mass Notification and Emergency Communication Technology, was FDNY Commissioner at the time.

“Seeing how people helped each other and were sincerely concerned over the welfare of strangers was remarkable. It lasted for months and I believe made a significant difference for those most adversely affected. Moral, emotional and physical support was critical at that time. When people, even strangers, suffer real tragedy, we have shown, not just New Yorkers, but Americans, that we care and want to help,” he said.

One of Mr. Von Essen’s first steps in rebuilding the department was the day after the attacks: He hired fellow St. Francis graduate Michael J. Regan ’80 to become First Deputy Fire Commissioner.

Mr. Regan, who had previously served five years as Deputy Fire Commissioner, left FDNY in January of 2002 and now works for JP Morgan Chase as the Global Director of Security and Investigations, says the rebuilding effort showed the resiliency and warmth of New Yorkers. “Everyone that experienced 9/11, whether emergency responders or recovery workers, had a life-changing experience. We were all reminded about the frailty of life and the importance of remembering and honoring all those who were lost.”

Another St. Francis alum, Richard J. Scheirer ’76, headed the agency at the center of the recovery and clean-up effort: the Office of Emergency Management. “The events of 9/11 changed me as a person by bringing me closer to my family, friends and faith. I became stronger. I will always remember the cross at St. Peter’s Church and how it inspired people,” said Mr. Scheirer, now Executive Vice President at Giuliani Partners. “I became friendly with Rabbi Joseph Potasnik (FDNY Chaplain) because of this tragedy, and he reminded me that it was caused by man and not by God.”

At the NYPD, the First Deputy Commissioner’s position was held by Joseph P. Dunne ’69, a 32-year veteran of the force while at the national level, Thomas J. Pickard ’72, was Deputy Director of the FBI on 9/11 and led the investigation into the attack.

For the people who were in and around the pit for months and months, it was some comfort to see the number of people who came together to start foundations and organizations such as Voices of September 11th to help family members and others. That spirit of giving now extends far beyond New York.

“One foundation that I am involved with is the Stephen Siller Foundation. They do the Tunnel to Towers Run every year and they raise money for people in need around the country like the Katrina victims, the New York Foundling Hospital, Wounded Warriors and the list goes on and on,” said Mr. Scheirer.

“The warmth and courage exhibited at this year’s Tunnel to Towers Race shows very clearly that people across the USA and the world continue to celebrate and honor the lives of those lost,” adds Mr. Regan.

“It is a wonderful feeling to help others and I am glad more people, many for the first time, are experiencing it,” said former Commissioner Von Essen. “I also think the heroism shown by FDNY has helped firefighters all over the world gain more respect and admiration from the people they serve.”

“9/11 to me is a symbol of both the worst and best in humanity; the worst because of the attack, the best because of the way we responded,” said Assistant Director of Alumni Relations Vanessa De Almeida ’00.

“We were all scared but we helped each other. If someone’s phone worked, they passed it around so everyone could call home, not caring if they got it back. If we walked to safety, we walked together, even if it meant we walked slower. People wanted to help.”

Mass of the Holy Spirit

The Fall 2011 semester began with a special Mass of the Holy Spirit on September 12. During the mass, attendees prayed for victims of 9/11 whose names were submitted by loved ones in the St. Francis Community.

Reflecting Through Literature

On Friday, September 9, American Studies and English Professor Athena Devlin participated in an hour-long radio program, Vox Pop : 9/11 Community Conversation on WAMC in Albany. Dr. Devlin used literature about both past tragedies and 9/11 as a starting point to discuss how people responded then and now.

Dimitar Georgiev ’10, now studying in the Security Studies Program at Georgetown University, earned second place and a $10,000 scholarship from the 2011 Richard A. Clarke National Scholarly Monograph Contest in commemoration of the 9/11 attacks for his work, Failure of American Strategic Thought and 9/11. The Center for First Amendment Studies sponsored the contest and hosted an awards ceremony on Sept. 14 with Richard A. Clarke, a terrorism and security advisor to several Presidents, and NJ Congressman Rob Andrews.

“9/11 was an event that defined my generation in a similar way that Hitler defined a generation 70 years ago. The contest provided me with the opportunity to reexamine what happened, why, and what came after,” said Mr. Georgiev who added that the prize has reinforced his decision to pursue a career in political science.

The Heart of St. Francis — Giving Back

Robert C. Sloane ’66
CO-FOUNDER, PRINCIPAL AND EXECUTIVE COACH, OPTIMARKET LLC

“T’ve always believed in doing something significant as a volunteer parallel with my job,” said Robert. C. Sloane ’66, Co-Founder of OptiMarket LLC and co-author of the new self-help book, Fired at 50: How to Overcome the Greatest Executive Job Search Challenge. Mr. Sloane’s career is emblazoned with a number of high profile accomplishments from senior management at Colgate-Palmolive to communications advisor for White House drug czar General Barry McCaffrey to marketing leadership in the creation of NFL Europe. But all along, he kept true to his beliefs in volunteer work, serving as Jaycees President for his New Jersey town, founding board member for a Connecticut organization dedicated to preserving Long Island Sound, helping job hunters at his Riverside, Connecticut parish St. Catherine of Siena and, in 1995, co-founding and serving as first Chairman of The Executive Forum, a Connecticut-based non-profit organization that serves as a resource to executives in transition to help them overcome hurdles to re-entering the job market. The EF currently has more than 300 executive members across diverse industries and functional leadership areas.

“Now, after over 10 years of our work at OptiMarket with numerous executives who have benefitted from our job search coaching services, my partner Tucker Mays and I decided to consolidate all our advice into one easy to use reference,” said Mr. Sloane. Fired at 50 provides insights about how to overcome society’s age bias and make your age an asset in a job search. The book also recommends the most productive ways to spend time searching for a job. A long-time and consistently generous donor to the College’s general and scholarship funds, Mr. Sloane has also given many hours to current students in the classroom, serving as an Adjunct Professor for seven years.

“A long-time corporate career that moved me out of New York City and prevented me from completing my Master’s Degree at Baruch, I wanted to consider teaching at the college level. Shortly after St. Francis Chancellor Frank Macchiarola ’62 became College President he told me that if I finished my degree, he’d find me a place to teach,” said Mr. Sloane. “I completed my studies, 30 years after they began, with a focus on the emerging Global Internet Business area. Dr. Macchiarola kept to his word and just a few weeks later, I was teaching Marketing at the College.” Mr. Sloane later created and taught the College’s first Internet Marketing course, collaborated with the Management Department to develop an e-commerce concentration, and assisted Dean Allen Burdowski in the early development of distance learning techniques.

Said Mr. Sloane: “The line from the Prayer of St. Francis, ‘For it is in giving that you receive,’ has always served as an important influence to me. And at a point in my life when I was considering going in a totally new career direction, Dr. Macchiarola’s wonderful words of advice to “go where you are needed” expressed a simple yet profound principle — one which I continue to apply in both my executive coaching work as well as through community service initiatives. I am proud to be an SFC alumnus and honored to have played a role in the college’s further development.”

Lt. Col. Walter V. McIntyre U.S. Air Force (Ret.) ’50

Inducted into the St. Clare Society posthumously, Lt. Col. Walter V. McIntyre USAF (Ret.) ’50 was an inspiration to many. Below are excerpts from two letters written by his daughter, Maura, before and after his passing.

“My father... fondly attributes much of his success in life to the education and life skills that were given to him by your institution.”

The second letter included a manual Lt. Col. McIntyre had saved from his time at St. Francis.

“The manual states that the aim of the college was to prepare students for a life that emphasizes the valuation of life and his duties to his fellow man and his God. As a soldier my father continued to honor this imperative knowing that his role should always first consider others, support and defend his country, and incorporate the existence and wondrousness of God in all that he did. Family consumed these same basic tenets and with eight children I am sure you can see how important it was to be conscious and present in the role and duties of father. He would say that he was not perfect in either role, but I can tell you that he lived as he was taught — to be thankful for all that he had been given; to share in equal measure, to report when he had fallen short, and most of all to love even when it sometimes hurt.

My father and my mother (deceased 2007) valued education and its importance in creating a substantive life. They were always interested in each of us finding a path that most reflected and refined our individual gifts. They created and fostered critical thought, ambitious endeavors, and sat quietly when a bar that had been set too low or too high needed adjustment.

In closing I hope that you will remember my father in your prayers. I continue to believe that... St. Francis College will continue to aspire to meet the aims of a time not so long ago and produce young men and women prepared to meet the challenges of today with dedication to purpose and commitment to the humanity that surrounds us.”

A Diamond in the Rough, Natasha Green ’04

Natasha Green ’04, Founder and CEO of Hidden Gems, Inc. started her nonprofit organization to help every child discover his or her hidden talent. She thinks she's hit a bullseye with her latest program, to bring archery to New York City Public School children.

“I picked archery because it’s a non-traditional sport in urban communities,” said Green. “It's really for all types of individuals because excellence in archery is based on skill more than strength.”

A triple sport student-athlete in basketball, volleyball and track, athletics at St. Francis had a great impact on Green, teaching her the value of commitment, team-work and hard-work.

“I learned about friendship and sticking together no matter what. My close friends are the ones I met at SFC,” added Green who went on to teach mathematics at DeWitt Clinton High School through the New York City Teaching Fellows program and is now working towards a Master’s Degree in Chemistry from LIU.

In addition to Hidden Gems, Green is also working with the Department of Education on a technology based concept to help put at risk students on a path to success.

Big Gaff on the Big Screen

George W. Gaffney ’67, also known as Big Gaff, has been spreading his love of movies across his Greenville, South Carolina home and beyond. His candid, tell-it-like-it-is reviews appear in his local daily newspaper, The Greenville News.

“I saw my first movie at age five. My two sisters, Goldie and Cathy, are a decade older and took me to the movies as a babysitting tool. The film kept me quiet and they got to see the shows they cared about,” said Gaffney. “I saw films far above the bar for small children and learned to pick up the unspoken clues and symbolism: the candle blows out, the person is dead; they stop showing the couple kissing and you only see the tide coming in, enough said.”

After graduating from St. Francis, Gaffney taught social studies for 35 years in both New York City and Charlotte, North Carolina. He moved to Greenville after the sudden passing of his wife Marilyn, in 2001. An editor at the News offered him a spot working in the restaurant review section. He took it, using it as his way in to ultimately publish his movie reviews.

“The value of film is that you can live two lives,” said Gaffney. “You can experience life in places you will never visit and you will see courage and cowardice that will influence how well you are prepared to deal with these elements when you are confronted with a moral or ethical challenge.”

For more, you can read Gaffney’s blog, at biggaff2.blogspot.com, which contains his musings on more than 250 Hollywood feature films from the past several years.

Faculty Notes

Dr. Suzanne Forsberg (Chair, Fine Arts) attended the 33rd annual conference of the Balalaika and Domra Association of America (BDAA) in Bollnäs, Sweden. She also traveled to Stockholm then to Dresden and Berlin, Germany, for archival research on the early 18th century symphony. Dr. Forsberg visited and photographed sites associated with Franz Liszt’s years in Weimar for the Liszt Bicentennial, which was celebrated in October with a lecture on Liszt and a concert performed by acclaimed pianist Andreas Klein. The Faculty Development and Faculty Research Committees supported her trips. Dr. Forsberg was elected treasurer of the Mozart Society of America, effective July 1. The New York Council for the Humanities recently awarded her a three-year contract for a new lecture entitled “Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frideric Handel: Masters of the Late Baroque.”

Dr. Robin Helburn (Chemistry and Physics) released her latest publication, Interfaces and Interphases in Analytical Chemistry (American Chemical Society Symposium Series 1062; distributed by Oxford University Press, 2011). She edited the book with the help of Dr. Mark Vitha of Drew University. In addition, Dr. Helburn’s work appears twice in the volume; as author of The “Interface” in Analytical Chemistry: Overview and Historical Perspective and co-author of the article Temperature Dependent Resistance and Magnetoresistance of Single Wall Carbon Nanotubes Mounted on Silica Fiber Surface.

Mark McSherry (Communication Arts) will help award a $50,000 prize for one journalist, whose work best focuses on themes such as social issues, economics and politics, as a juror for the 2012 Media for Liberty Award. Men’s Basketball
On the Up and Up

St. Francis (NY) took a major step forward under first-year head coach Glenn Braica during the 2010-2011 season, registering their best record since the 2002-2003 campaign and finished 15-15 (10-8 in league play) and earning the #5 seed in the Northeast Conference Tournament. The Terriers lost a pair of All-Conference performers when seniors Ricky Cadell and Akeem Bennett graduated but there are seven returning players and six newcomers about whom the coaching staff is extremely excited. Point guard Dre Calloway made a good contribution during his initial season and demonstrated his ability to lead on both ends of the floor. Iona transfer sophomore Ben Mockford will be asked to replace some of the scoring of the departed seniors. The southpaw is more than just a deadly outside bomber as he possesses the ability to attack the rim and set-up his teammates as well. Sophomore lead guard Brent Jones should see plenty of action in the backcourt. There will be plenty of competition in the frontcourt but look for five players to log most of the minutes. 6-6 senior Stefan Perunicic has drilled 207 career three-pointers and is the fifth highest returning scorer in the entire conference. 6-4 junior Travis Nichols, 6-6 junior Akeem Johnson, 6-8 sophomore Matt Milk, and 6-6 freshman Jalen Cannon comprise a talented group that should give their opponents fits.

The Terriers will also return to Madison Square Garden this year, playing one of their home games against LIU on February 8 at 9:00pm.

Women’s Basketball
Welcomes Largest Recruiting Class Under Coach Milano

It was a busy recruiting season as head coach Brenda Milano and her staff added eight new players to a mix of five veterans as they work to turn things around for the program. All eight Terriers from this largest recruiting class under Coach Milano are expected to contribute immediately. Madeline Jankowski (Middle Village, NY), Jaymee Veney (Fairborn, OH), Colette Hounshell (Kirtland, OH), Kelly Myers (Coventry, CT), Sarah Benedetti (Canton, CT), Katie Fox (Twinsburg, OH), Eilidh Simpson (Mordialloc, Australia) and Jessica Kaufman (Victoria, Australia) are an exciting group that offers multi-dimensional skills. Among the returners, lightning-quick sophomore guard Jasmin Robinson demonstrated the ability to run the offense and score in her initial campaign. Junior Stefanie Bingham can contribute on both sides but it will be her aggressive play on defense that will help the Terriers greatly this season. Junior Kim Snauwaert will be asked to provide veteran leadership. Sophomores Kiley Grabbe and Ozana Marginean both received quality playing time last season.

Men’s Soccer Team Off to Fast Start

The Terriers enjoyed a sensational non-conference season as they went 5-2-1 before opening Northeast Conference Play. Head Coach Tom Giovatto’s young squad started out the season 0-2-1 but then reeled off five consecutive victories for the first time since the 2008 campaign. St. Francis has played tremendously on the defensive side of the field as they have allowed just 0.71 goals per game, which is good for the second fewest in the conference. Tyler Clarhaut has been impressive between the pipes and is among the league-leaders with six shutouts. The playmaking combination of Frenchmen Gabriel Gabot and Adam Maabdi has been a force as they have combined for seven goals and five assists. Gabot was named the Adidas/NEC Player of the Week on September 12.

Junior Adam Maabdi and Freshman Gabriel have added a French twist to the Terriers game, just two members of the international team with players from nine countries.

ALTAMIRANO ALANÍS
COMPETES ON MEXICAN NATIONAL TEAM

Terriers’ water polo player and Mexican native Marión Altamirano Alanís participated on the Mexican National Women’s Water Polo team in the University Games in Shenzhen, China, this past summer. “It was an amazing experience,” said Altamirano Alanís, a senior. “More than 100 athletes tried out for the team so to make the squad was a big honor. It was a great learning experience and it can only help me in my preparation for our season here at St. Francis College this spring.” Marión Altamirano Alanís in Shenzhen, China, with the Mexican National Women’s Water Polo Team.

SFCATHLETICS.COM GETS NEW LOOK

Go to SFCathletics.com to see the new and dynamic Terrier sports website. The upgrade, the first since 2006, provides St. Francis more flexibility in displaying athletic photos and videos.

“The new website offers a cutting-edge web presence for St. Francis College athletics,” said Terriers’ Director of Athletics Irma Garcia. “The website will greatly enhance our ability to connect with our fans and potential recruits.”

In addition to the new color scheme and graphics, visitors to SFCathletics.com will immediately notice the enhanced photos and new headers. Large action photos greet visitors on the new main page and each sport’s home page. For smart phone users, a customized mobile version offers easy access to Terriers’ scores and stories. Other enhancements are easier to read schedules and updating tweets from the #SFCTerriers Twitter feed.

Terrier fans will also still find a wide variety of detailed game recaps, statistics, season previews, player biographies and student-athlete features on the site.
Women’s Bowling in 10th Annual Tunnel to Towers Run/Walk

On Sept. 25, members of the St. Francis College women’s bowling team ran in the 10th Annual “The Firefighter Stephen Siller-Tunnel to Towers Run/Walk.” It was the third consecutive year that the Terriers participated. The team is participating to honor current SFC bowler, Kaitlin Caspar’s uncle, FDNY Officer Lt. Dan O’Callaghan, from Engine 54, Ladder 4, Battalion 9, as well as those who lost their lives on 9/11. The 5K course starts in Brooklyn on the Gowanus approach to the Brooklyn Battery Tunnel, winds through lower Manhattan and finishes at West and Vesey streets.

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT HELPS JOPLIN REBOUND

SFC Athletics stepped right up to help tornado victims in Joplin, MO, this summer, sending the city new and gently used sporting goods, sports clothing and equipment donated by the women’s basketball team and its coaching staff. It was part of Help Joplin Rebound, a program put together by LouisvilleCatholicSports.com. “We got the press release and my reaction was ‘We’ve got to help,’” said Meghan O’Brien, Director of Athletic Marketing and Senior Woman Administrator. “I just couldn’t imagine kids without anything to do for the summer months so I knew we had to get involved.” Ms. O’Brien organized a small group of students to help coordinate their own drive along with email blasts to coaches, faculty, staff, and friends.

The Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) was instrumental in making the sporting goods drive a success. In addition to helping the children of Joplin, SAAC, which is moderated by Ms. O’Brien, helps with breast cancer awareness, the New York Roadrunners shoe drive and events helping to raise funds to find a cure for cancer. “It’s all about the Franciscan spirit of giving back. If we give, others will support us as well,” said O’Brien. “We saw the need with this disaster and the kids responded.”

Frankelly Fernandez, Farzan Bigdeli and Alexandra Delacruz show some of the gear collected for victims of the Joplin.

Office of Development

Under Thomas F. Flood, Vice President for Development, fundraising at St. Francis College has been invigorated with an outpouring of support from alumni and friends of the College who believe in the Franciscan ideals that govern the school’s mission.

But, Mr. Flood did not achieve these successes alone; a combination of long-time and new employees in the Office of Development work hard every day to help St. Francis reach its full potential.

Marion Boteju
Director of Scholarship Programs

Ms. Boteju worked for several years at the Alive in Hope Foundation, most recently as Executive Director. At St. Francis, she’s working to add structure to the College’s endowment program, which currently features more than 240 separate scholarships. Having moved to the U.S. from Sri Lanka, Ms. Boteju is proud to support the College’s tradition of educating immigrant and first-generation students. “Their gratitude, mixed with a sense of urgency, tells me that no one takes their scholarship for granted,” said Ms. Boteju. “I’m sure they feel the same huge impact that a Catholic education had on my life.”

Nicholas Canedo
Donor Relations Associate / Prospect Research

Mr. Canedo graduated from Hofstra Law School, but decided to forego a career in law. Instead he focused on raising money for non-profit organizations. “It’s really fulfilling to work on something you believe in, something that is bigger than you,” said Mr. Canedo who supports several aspects of the department and likes that he sees the results of his work immediately in the students who attend the College. “This is an exciting time to be at St. Francis. We’re at a turning point in the institution, where Development is growing and we’re really picking up momentum towards our goals.”

Sabrina Simmons ’10
Office Assistant

Ms. Simmons has worked in Development for seven years, making her the senior staff member in the department. During that time, she’s seen the introduction of a number of innovative and creative fundraising programs like auctions at the Charter Award Dinner. “I earned my associate’s degree while working here and saw firsthand how students are exposed to different cultures and taught about more than classwork,” said Ms. Simmons. “They learn about life in general and how to manage both business and personal relationships.” Ms. Simmons added she’s proud to work at a place that’s opening doors and providing excellent opportunities for students and alumni.

Edward Stewart
Director of Major and Planned Gifts

Mr. Stewart previously worked for the Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers, raising money for international missions, but while the work may have drifted overseas, he always held on to his Brooklyn roots. His connection to St. Francis runs back to his childhood when during the summers at Breezy Point, many Franciscan Brothers shared the next cabana over. “I love to hear people’s motivations when they make their gifts,” said Mr. Stewart. “It can be a fond memory from the time they spent here, a door that was opened to their future or just simple appreciation for the kindness of a Brother or professor.”

Charlene St. Vil
Director of Annual Giving

Ms. St. Vil comes to St. Francis College from the Partnership at Drugfree.org where she was Associate Director of Special Events and Development Services. She has more than 10 years of experience in fundraising. Ms. St. Vil is now focusing on projects like recruiting class agents, the senior gift and creating custom websites for each of the reunion classes. “From current students and their parents to alumni and friends, so many people have a great feeling about St. Francis,” said Ms. St. Vil. “We just want to make sure we’re at the top of their mind when they’re thinking about helping others.”

Emmlynn Taylor
Donor Relations Associate / Giving Programs

Ms. Taylor is the newest addition to the Development team, having worked as a sales and service coach at Capital One Bank where she also focused a great deal of time making sure all bank employees gave back to the community. “We could’ve just written checks to various charities, but we decided to do something in addition, that I think means much more,” said Ms. Taylor. “We made sure that every year each of our employees also donated their personal time to a cause.” In her new role, she’ll be supporting everything from scholarships to the capital campaign to special events.

The commitment to serving St. Francis College and the larger Franciscan community is unmistakable inside the Development Office, where two mantras guide their work every day: New Funds, New Friends, and We Do It Together, We Do It For Others.

A MESSAGE FROM DENIS J. SALAMONE ’75
DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

It is my great pleasure to share with you that U.S. News & World Report has once again selected St. Francis College as a Best Regional College in the North. In addition, U.S. News ranks SFC as the 4th most diverse Regional College in the North. This good news is seconded by Forbes.com, which for the fourth year in a row has named St. Francis College to its America’s Best Colleges list. This is a ringing endorsement of the College’s mission and of SFC’s ability to transform lives through the gift of a Franciscan education.

These stellar results bear witness to the generosity, faith and loyalty of our alumni and friends, whose generous support despite economic uncertainty helped to make this 2010-2011 fiscal year a tremendous one for SFC. We attracted a record number of applicants for our freshman class and now have over 2,500 full time students. On behalf of the College’s Board of Trustees, administration, faculty, staff and the students whom we serve, please accept our heartfelt thanks.

And in 2011-2012 we believe that our U.S. News and Forbes.com rankings will advance even further because of your ongoing dedication to making a difference in the lives of young women and men.

THOMAS F. FLOOD
VICE PRESIDENT FOR DEVELOPMENT

Our donor report offers us the opportunity to share the story of giving which is at the heart of St. Francis College. It also allows for the College to express our heartfelt gratitude. So many of the SFC supporters listed on the following pages are themselves graduates of the College and know firsthand the value of a St. Francis College education. Others are drawn from the ranks of SFC faculty and administration, family members of graduates, current students and friends from the wider community the College serves. What we share is an abiding belief in the ability of St. Francis College to concretely change lives for the better and to enhance the life of the community in Brooklyn Heights, Greater New York and beyond.

Our 150 year story is centered on our mission of providing an affordable values-based education to young men and women who will grow and flourish in our Franciscan environment. Each year a new chapter in the life of the College begins as our graduates go forth to make their mark in the world and a new freshman class enters our doors. It is your support, your sacrifices that underwrite each new chapter, that transform lives year after year. Please help the living book that is SFC continue to help dreams be realized.

ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

The generosity of our benefactors reflects and strengthens the core of St. Francis College. Your support helps make the St. Francis College experience available to students who might not otherwise have the opportunity to pursue a college education. Expanding these opportunities continues to be a top priority for St. Francis College.

If you would like to contribute to or create a scholarship, please contact the Office of Development and Alumni Affairs at 718.489.5361 or development@sfc.edu.

You may make a gift to St. Francis College by:

Think you need a fortune to fund a St. Francis College scholarship?

Think again!

St. Francis College offers many ways to help our benefactors meet their giving and financial goals—and you don’t need a fortune to invest to experience the joys and personal growth charity brings.

You can establish your own scholarship fund with a gift of $100,000 or more or you can create a sunset/term fund in memory or honor of a special individual with as little as $10,000. If you wish, you may further advance these funds by contributing at a subsequent time.

Scholarships can be established through outright gifts or a variety of planned-giving options including bequest, charitable remainder trusts, lead trusts, gifts of insurance, etc.

Friends of SFC also have the option of making a contribution to an existing scholarship fund at any time. A comprehensive list of all scholarships is detailed in this stewardship report.

Please consider leaving a legacy of gratitude and hope to future generations of SFC students and to a Franciscan tradition with proven results. Contact the Development Office today to see how we can help you become a scholarship funder.
